

Dolores (Stewart) Riccio, 86

Dolores (Stewart) Riccio of Plymouth died on May 21. She was the beloved wife of the late Ottone M. Riccio and the loving mother of Lucy-Marie Sanel of Plymouth and the late Charles Sundance Anderson. Born in Boston on February 23, 1931, Dolores was the daughter of the late Josephine (Papaglia) Stewart. She was educated in Pembroke and was graduated from Pembroke High School in 1948. She lived many years in Warwick, RI before returning to the Duxbury and Plymouth area. Dolores is warmly remembered by the fans of her novels – the 11 novels in The Divine Circle series of mysteries as well as “Spirit” and “My First Murder.” Dolores was also the author of several books of poetry including “Driving with the Right Side of the Brain” published in 2016.

Funeral services were held on Wednesday, May 31 at the First Parish Church, 842 Tremont St. Visiting hours were at the Cartmell Funeral Home, 150 Court St., Plymouth on Tuesday, May 30. Burial was in the Mayflower Cemetery, Duxbury.

Memorial donations in her name may be made to Best Friends Animal Society (bestfriends.org) or Planned Parenthood.

For an online guestbook, visit cartmelldavis.com.